History of the shipping business Howard Smith Shipping, which was the longest lasting shipping enterprise in Australia. From the purchase of the 177-ton passenger and cargo steamer 'Express' in 1854 until the sale of the last cargo ship in 1997 there was always a member of the Howard Smith family on the board of the company. Covers history of company, details of directors, financial information, list of all the cargo and passenger vessels, and towage and salvage interests. In August 2001 the company was acquired by the Perth-based group Wesfarmers. Author has a lifelong involvement with the New Zealand shipping industry. Previous books include 'Union Fleet' and 'Jack of All Trades, Master of None'.
